Plantaaguet (founded by Geoffray, Count of Anjou, who, it is said, derived his name, afterwards so illustrious in his royal descents, from the full bloomed branch of the yellow broom (plenrus-genistce), which he wore by way of plume in his helm. Rauin ascribes, however, the assumption of PLANTAGAUNET to Fulk, the great Count of Anjou, who, "being stung with remorse for some wicked action, in order to atone for it went a pilgrimage to Jerusalem, and before the Holy Sepulchre was scourged with a bare back twigs, which grow in great plenty there." Traversy, Count of Anjou, ms. 1127, Matilda, or Matw, widow of the Emperor Henry V., of Germany, and dau. and heiress of Henry I., King of England, and had by her a son and successor, whose throne she assumed, and who assumed the name of his father, and founded the PLANTAGAUNET dynasty). Gu. three lions pass. guard. or, were borne by King Henry II., after his marriage with Eleanor of Aquitaine. The royal arms of England probably were thus two lions. The royal arms thus continued unaltered till the time of Edward III., who, assumed in right of his mother, Isabella, dau of Philip the Fair, the fleurs-de-lis of France. Edward III. was the first English monarch who bore a crest, and the one he took was, A lion pass. guard. crowned or, on a chapéau. His shield was, 1st and 4th, az. second, a lion passant guard. and third, a lion passant guard. or. On the Fleming family coat of arms shielded in that co. at the invasion of 1172, and continued one of the chief gentry and landed proprietors in the baronies of Fethar and Baryg, in the co. until deprived of their estates by Oliver Cromwell.  In 1620, 9 Edward I., John de Rochester was paid 2l. for service to the king; in 1635, 19 Edward I., John Rochester was summoned, with many other gentry of Wexford, to attend the Lords Justices with horse and arms; and in 1639, Robert Rochester was summoned to attend with men-at-arms and bolliers at the Duffy; John Rossiter, Esq., of Rathmacne, d. 8 April, 1627, leaving three sons, Thomas, Philip, and Marcus, who were deprived of all their lands by the governor vert. N.B. The arms of the Norman family of Rochester, or Rositer, were "Ar. on a chev. gu. three pheons or." An old MS. collection of arms of Irish families in Ulster's Office, gives, of the Rossiter, three arms, differed with a "lizard or alligator in chief," a device borne by many ancient Milesean families in their arms and crests. The Wexford Rossiters, having become Hibernised, appear to have adopted the lizard or alligator, not only as a difference in their shield to distinguish them from the parent stock in England, but also as a mark of their adopted nationality; in course of time the family dropped the charges on their former shield, retaining only their adopted device or mark of difference, and so the arms, as they now appear in the books of Ulster's Office, are charged with the alligator alone.  Crest—An empty helm az.  Rossiter (The Bridge of Baryg, co. MS. contain the pedigree of the last possessors and the coat of arms of this family, seated at a very remote period in co. Cornwall, the heires of the elder male stem of which—descended from matches with Kellet, Trevovy, Portestor, Pembroke, Bonithorn, Penarth, Mansfield, Pederton, and Mellett—in Holmbridge, Old Port was acquired by Richard Somaister, a presumed younger son of the Cornish house, who m. the heiress of De Haestoun, grandam. of the Thomas De Haestoun whose wife was Alice, senor co-heir of the De La Ports. Robert Somaister, Esq., of Old Port, his son and heir, left two sons, William and Adam. William, the elder, acquiring property at Nether Ex, the senior line was there continued until his grandson, William (d. 1646), and another, Edward Ex passed to his only sister Jane, wife of John Lempenny, whose son, John Lempenny, sold it. Adam Somaister, second son of Robert Somaister, Esq., of Old Port, acquired the Old Ex and tateate, to which being added Wycombe he moved to the latter, where his line continued until his grandson, John Somaister, temp. Henry vii., purchased and removed to Plaismore, where the male line was further continued to beyond the period of the Civil War, in which Sir Samuel Somerset, Knt., of Painsford, and his four sons, took an active part on the royal side, selling Old Port and other estates to meet the expenses of their men in the field. Through the period of their existence several at Old Port, Widcombe, and Painsford, the Sommers were matched with the most principal families of the district. They possessed Painsford, Duloe, Fortchurch, Holden, Trevannion, Fowell, Arnedale, Strode, Ae., but neither the history of their extinction in the male line, nor what family enjoys their representation, is clearly known. On the completion of the 17th century, Painsford, which was a very fine mansion, having a splendid marble chapel attached to it, was sold to the family of Kelland.

HARRISON & SONS,

EXPORT AND GENERAL STATIONERS,

1, ST. JAMES'S STREET, LONDON, S.W.
Extract from The Morning Post, August 21, 1873.

A West-End Private Hotel.—Few persons but those who have availed themselves of the comfort and convenience of a Private Hotel, conducted on a liberal scale, can appreciate the advantages of such a temporary home.

This class of Hotel is more frequently to be met with in London than in any Continental or American city, and there are certain localities in London which favour their popularity with the upper classes of society. For example, in Dover Street, Piccadilly, there is one of long-established reputation, known by the name of Cowan’s Hotel, but now possessed by Mr. Denyer.

It would seem as if it had been built for this especial purpose, as a long passage connects under the same roof one house with an entrance in Albemarle Street, and another with an exit or entrance in Dover Street. Each house contains suites of fine large and lofty rooms, beautifully furnished, and replete with all the conveniences of a private dwelling.

The general supervision of the establishment is under the immediate care of Mrs. Denyer (formerly Miss Cowan), and whether a suite of rooms is occupied by a family or an individual visitor, there is the same regard to the comforts and requirements of each.

The ménage is at the option and according to individual orders, and is of course of the very best character that the London markets can supply.

Cowan’s
26, Dover Street, and 29, Albemarle Street.
London. W.

Wines.

For wines there is, from the fact of Mr. Denyer being a wine merchant with very large connections among the nobility, an inimitable choice of the best brands and from the first shippers. The wine cellars are, however, in a very distinct locality, being situated in Regent Street, and occupying a subterraneous area extending in breadth from the west to the east, or opposite side of this spacious street.

Sparkling and still wines of every class which Germany and the champagne districts can furnish, the red wines of Portugal, and the white wines of Spain are not only to be found in these cellars in every variety, but Messrs. Denyer & Co. have a special reputation of possessing the largest stock of the choice and delicate sherries of Sanlucar which can perhaps be found in London.

These last-named wines are a speciality in themselves, because it is well known that Sanlucar is the native soil of Amontillado, Manzanilla, and all that class of dry sherries which are so highly recommended for their pure, natural, and nutritive properties.

They are also importers of

The New Sparkling Wine, Rhinegau Champagne.

NOTE.—Suites of Rooms specially adapted for Wedding Breakfasts. Estimates given for large or small parties, inclusive of Wines if required.

Special advantages are offered in respect to Wines, which can be purchased at the Cellars, 25, Regent Street, at Merchants’ Prices, paying the Hotel a small charge for Corkage.

DENT'S CHRONOMETERS, WATCHES, and CLOCKS have long held pre-eminent rank, as may be seen from the Reports of various scientific persons:—

THE ASTRONOMER ROYAL (Sir G. B. AIREY), in his Report to the Admiralty (August 13, 1870) on forty Chronometers entered for annual competition, says of M. F. DENT's Chronometer—

"This is the finest Chronometer that we have ever had on trial."

N.B.—THE LATE ASTRONOMER ROYAL (J. Pond, Esq.), reporting, in 1829, on the celebrated public trial by order of The Lords of the Admiralty, which lasted thirteen years, during which nearly 500 Chronometers were tested, says:—

"Your Chronometer, No. 114, is entitled to the First Premium. Actual variation in the year 0:54 hundredths of a second. This is superior to any other yet tried."

SIR WILLIAM ARMSTRONG, Inventor of the Armstrong Gun, says:—

"9, Hyde Park Street, W., 14th November, 1861.

"The Chronometer Watch you made for me in December, 1859, has never been affected by travelling or riding; its variation at the end of a year was only 45 seconds. It has proved in every respect a most satisfactory Watch."

"W. G. ARMSTRONG.

"Mr. M. F. DENT,

MOURNING.

MESSRS. JAY, anxious to remove the impression which they find has gained undue circulation, that none but the richest materials in Costumes, Mantles, and Millinery, are sold at their Establishment, deem it a duty to themselves and the Public to assure all families who have not yet dealt at JAY’s Mourning Warehouse, that good wearing materials are cut from the piece, and at more than an equivalent for the price, which is from 1s. per yard upwards, and Crape from 2s. 9d. per yard.

MESSRS. JAY have always at command experienced Dressmakers and Milliners, who act as travellers, so that in the event of immediate Mourning being required, or any other sudden emergency for dress, one can be dispatched to any part of the kingdom on receipt of a letter or telegram, without any expense whatever to the purchaser. All articles are marked in plain figures, and charges are the same as if the goods were bought for ready money at the Warehouse.

Reasonable estimates also given for household Mourning at a great saving to large or small families.
